

TWO BEST PRACTICES OF THE INSTITUTION FOR THE YEAR 2019-20

1. Title of the Practice: Free education to meritorious cum poor students.
2. Objectives of the Practice: Amguri College is based in a semi-rural location, meritorious students often face troubles in pursuing higher education. This free admission is introduced by the college provides a protective cover from Welfare fund Welfare committee that helps them cope in their most vulnerable years.
3. The context: Most of the students (male/female) belong to families with low and poor income. Sometimes it becomes very difficult for them to meet the education. Though having a prospect of bright future, parents cannot send their children to get education due to poor economic condition. The college management has initiated this practice to boost the minds of both students and parents to be stewards of the planet.
4. The practice: Keeping in mind the “Beti bachao, beti parhau” campaign of the Government, this step forwards imparting free education and to enroll tea garden students, where more than 60 students are girls, by the college seems to be very effective. Students are not only able to get the benefit of such policy, but also a sense of awareness is instilled in them. The policy has the same follow up of the instructions of the Govt. of Assam to access education in free.
5. Evidence of Success: Most of the students of Amguri College , as it has been obtained from the profile, mostly come from marginal areas with low/poor economic background with minority students experiencing Financial hardships, this free admission for the students has achieved huge success among them as it is done for free of any cost on their parts. In the similar way, the chance given to tea garden students to get enrollment offered by the college also has proved to be successful as all the expenses regarding this are borne by the college itself.
6. Problems encountered and resources required: So far, no such problem worth to be mentioned has been encountered by the authority. But authority has to meet this expenditure from and within their limited resources.
